The is a study of John 18:12 to 19:16, that section of the Fourth Gospel which narrates the main story of the trial and death of Jesus through the eyes of the trial judge, Pontius Pilate. The book was first published in 1976, and has been reprinted several times. The author, Andrew Ernest Harvey, is a well-respected scholar of the New Testament, particularly the Gospel of John. His book offers a fresh perspective on the trial of Jesus, focusing on the legal and rhetorical aspects of the narrative. Harvey argues that the Gospel of John presents a Jesus who claims not only to tell the truth but also to be the truth. He claims that the Fourth Gospel is a legal document, written as a series of trials to establish Jesus’ identity and authority. Harvey’s study of the trial narrative is thorough and rigorous, drawing on legal and rhetorical scholarship to explore the complexities of the Gospel’s portrayal of Jesus’ trial. The book is a valuable resource for students and scholars of the New Testament, offering a unique and insightful analysis of one of the most famous narratives in the New Testament. Overall, Jesus on Trial is a must-read for anyone interested in the legal and rhetorical aspects of the trial of Jesus in the Gospel of John.
