Achieving schools often spend twice as much—or more—on their school library for every 953 students and cutbacks continue. Access to better libraries means better reading.

But book awards can also help readers to discover exemplary books across a variety of...